Behold, I Will Do Something New! (Isaiah 43:19)

We invite you to register for Biennial Conference 2016 taking place November 9–11 in New Orleans. Innovation, improvisation, entrepreneurship, and an ever-widening understanding of equity, justice, and diversity are the dynamic forces now shaping the Crescent City. During our time together, we'll explore how these forces are also shaping Episcopal schools. So take the time to join hundreds of your Episcopal school colleagues for learning, networking, and worship that will help you to do something new! For more information about the conference visit www.episcopalschools.org/biennial

We look forward to seeing you in the Big Easy. Laissez les bons temps rouler!

Conference Highlights

Tours and Visits

Anna's Place NOLA

Wednesday, November 9

1:30 PM-4:30 PM

Ticket required: $35

Anna's Place NOLA is a place of peace where children realize their potential and families and the community are nurtured so that poverty and violence no longer make their home in the Tremé/7th Ward. Learn how this powerful witness promotes healing and wholeness of body, mind and spirit by offering academic, cultural, and arts enrichment; holistic health care; and healthy lifestyle education.

Café Reconcile

Wednesday, November 9

1:30 PM-4:30 PM

Ticket required: $35

Founded on the premise that the power of reconciliation can help overcome poverty, prejudice, and fear, this faith-based organization ministers to youth in New Orleans. It provides young men and women (16–22) with a voice about issues they are facing, and prepares them for the future with sustainable life skills. It believes that breaking down barriers of race, culture, and religion can lead to systemic change, creating a model of renewal supported by social, spiritual, and economic enrichment. Learn more about this program and sample the cuisine of its café.

Innovation + Design at St. Martin's Episcopal School, Metairie, LA

Wednesday, November 9

1:30 PM-4:30 PM

Ticket required: $35

The Innovation + Design program at St. Martin's Episcopal School equips students with the skills and mindsets necessary to succeed in college and in the 21st century workplace, such as adaptability, brainstorming, collaboration, and design. Working alongside faculty, students solve real-world problems by integrating relevant design projects into their curriculum. Visit the program's spaces and learn more about this exciting initiative.

Walking Tour: The Historic French Quarter

Wednesday, November 9

1:30 PM-4:30 PM

Ticket required: $20

Limited to 20 participants

The French Quarter. The Vieux Carré. La Nouvelle Orleans. The original city. Full of charm, wonder, and history. This is the tour for those wishing to come to terms with HOW New Orleans came to be, who created this place and gave it its unique character, and why the city remains so distinctive today. You'll also learn about the Louisiana Landmarks Society, whose mission is to promote historic preservation through education, advocacy, and the operation of the Pitot House.

Walking Tour: The Garden District

Wednesday, November 9

1:30 PM-4:30 PM

Ticket required: $20

Limited to 20 participants

Tour this historic American sector of New Orleans with its antebellum mansions and stately gardens, and revisit New Orleans when Cotton was King. Get the low-down on the 19th century rivalry between the French-speaking, Catholic Creoles downtown and the Anglo-American Protestants who mostly settled in this uptown neighborhood. Why did New Orleans become such a boomtown? What was life like in those days? What brought about a decline? These are some of the questions we'll consider.

Walking Tour: The African and Afro-Creole Experience in New Orleans

Wednesday, November 9

1:30 PM-4:30 PM

Ticket required: $20

Limited to 20 participants

This stroll through the French Quarter begins with the arrival in New Orleans of the first enslaved West Africans and describes the contributions, sacrifices, and lasting achievements of these people and their descendants through the colonial era and beyond. The tour also considers the emergence and flourishing of a vital free black population in New Orleans. You'll learn about the Backstreet Cultural Museum, which works to preserve and perpetuate the unique cultural traditions of New Orleans' African-American society.

Keynote Speakers

Christena Cleveland, Ph.D.

Opening General Session
Thursday, November 10
8:45 AM-10:00 AM

Christena Cleveland is a social psychologist with a hopeful passion for reconciling across cultural divisions. She is the first Associate Professor of the Practice of Reconciliation at Duke University's Divinity School. Christena earned a B.A. from Dartmouth College and a Ph.D. from the University of California, Santa Barbara.

Her research examines how culture influences theological/ideological approaches to peacemaking and reconciliation; how social processes, such as identity and self-esteem, impede a group's ability to reconcile with culturally-different groups; and how individual factors (e.g., professed theologies/ideologies) interact with social factors (e.g., the status of one's social group) to allow certain individuals or groups to dominate others.

In her book, Disunity in Christ: Uncovering the Hidden Forces that Keep Us Apart (Intervarsity Press, 2013), she examines and offers research-based strategies to overcome the nonconscious cognitive, emotional, and identity processes that pull Christians into homogeneous groups, fuel inaccurate perceptions of culturally-different others, contribute to an "Us vs. Them" mentality, stimulate intergroup prejudice and hostility, and ultimately inhibit reconciliation. The book received a 2013 Leadership Journal Book Award.

David Coleman

Awards Luncheon
Thursday, November 10
12:00 PM-1:30 PM

David Coleman is President and Chief Executive Officer of the College Board. After enrolling at Yale University, he taught reading to high school students from low-income families and started Branch, an innovative community service program for inner-city students in New Haven, Connecticut. After graduate studies in the United Kingdom, he worked at McKinsey & Company, where he led much of the firm's pro bono work in education.

With a team of educators, David founded the Grow Network, an organization committed to making assessment results truly useful for teachers, parents and students. The Grow Network delivered breakthrough-quality reports for parents and teachers as well as individualized learning guides for students.

David was named to the 2013 Time 100, the magazine's annual list of the 100 most influential people in the world. He has been recognized as one of Time magazine's "11 Education Activists for 2011" and was one of the NewSchools Venture Fund Change Agents of the Year for 2012.

Scott S. Cowen, D.B.A.

Closing General Session
Friday, November 11
4:00 PM-5:15 PM

Scott S. Cowen, D.B.A., is President Emeritus of Tulane University and author of The Inevitable City: The Resurgence of New Orleans and the Future of Urban America. He served as Tulane's 14th president from July 1998 through June 2014 and has been named one of the top college presidents in the nation by Time. Newsweek twice declared Tulane, under his leadership, one of the "Hottest Schools in America."

He has been a leader in New Orleans' recovery from Hurricane Katrina, which inflicted more than $650 million in damages to Tulane alone. He has been widely praised for helping to transform New Orleans' K-12 public schools and health care system after the storm. For these and other efforts, Dr. Cowen was awarded the Times-Picayune's Loving Cup, New Orleans CityBusiness named him one of the 30 "Driving Forces" in New Orleans in the last 30 years and he was named New Orleanian of the Year by Gambit.

He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and was a member of the White House Council for Community Solutions, which advised President Barack Obama on the needs of disconnected youth.

Church-School Relations

This Deep Dive session will outline elements of healthy parish day school governance and lines of authority, and offer practical tools to sustain a positive working relationship between church and school leaders. Topics will include: a rationale for church-school relations, differences between parishes and schools, governance roles and responsibilities, and shared space and expense allocations. The session is designed for rectors, heads of school and early childhood education directors, and vestry and school board members who want to learn more about best practices and/or mature their school's governance and operations.

PRESENTER(S): Ann Mellow, Associate Director, National Association of Episcopal Schools (NY)

New Heads of School

Whether you are heading a school for the first time or beginning your tenure as head of an Episcopal school, join other newly appointed and experienced Episcopal school heads to explore the distinctive dimensions of Episcopal school leadership and expand your group of colleagues. Topics will include Episcopal identity, the spiritual life of a school, board-head and constituency relations, and the importance of self-care. It's a great way to start Biennial Conference 2016.

PRESENTER(S): John W. Cooper II, Ph.D., Headmaster, TMI—The Episcopal School of Texas (TX); David C. Faus, Headmaster, St. Paul's School (MD); Marie H. Kidd, Head of School, Trinity Episcopal School of Austin (TX); Mary K. Menacho, Head of School, Trinity School (CA)

New Chaplains

Join experienced school chaplains—representing a wide variety of types of schools and age levels—as they address the major challenges and opportunities of entering into the world of school ministry. Issues to be addressed include: leading school worship, curriculum, age-appropriate ministry, classroom management, and the unique work of a chaplain in an academic as well as interreligious setting. This session is designed for those at the initial stages of their work in schools.

PRESENTER(S): The Rev. Ann P. Bonner-Stewart, Chaplain, Saint Mary's School (NC); The Rev. Kristin N. Barberia, Chaplain, St. Matthew's Parish School (CA); The Rev. Todd R. FitzGerald, Chaplain, St. Stephen's Episcopal School (TX); The Rev. Brian McGreevy, Head Chaplain, Porter-Gaud School (SC); The Rev. Jennie C. Olbrych, Associate Chaplain for Lower School, Porter-Gaud School (SC)

Soul Scrubbing with Haiti, 1 & 2

Over sixty Episcopal schools in the United States have a partnership with an Episcopal school in Haiti through the Partnership Program of the Episcopal Diocese of Haiti. NAES urges its schools to respond to the critical need for the mission and work of Episcopal schools in Haiti by entering into supportive partnerships. Either alone or in concert with other schools and institutions, a mutual and dynamic relationship with a Haitian school teaches students and faculty to respond to a world which needs them, to learn from people whose lives are very different from their own, and to be a part of the rebuilding of a nation with a fascinating history. 101 for those interested in learning more. 102 for those already on the journey.

PRESENTER(S): The Rev. Kesner Ajax, Director, Haiti Partnership Program, Diocese of Haiti (HT); Canon Serena E. Beeks, D.Min., Executive Director, Commission on Schools, Diocese of Los Angeles, (CA); The Rev. P. Roger Bowen, U.S. Coordinator, Haiti Partnership Program (VA)

CHAPEL & WORSHIP • STUDY OF RELIGION

Innovation and the Worship Setting: An Unexpected Union

If you value and believe in the importance of a holistic spiritual life for our students and school community and you feel a passion for innovative and transforming worship, you will want to be part of this conversation. We will combine the gifts of music teachers, worship directors, chaplains, and innovators to envision new, vibrant, and meaningful worship opportunities, inside and outside of the chapel setting.

GRADES: Early Childhood, Elementary, Middle School, Upper School

PRESENTER(S): Daniel Eguizabal, Music Teacher, St. Stephen's Episcopal Day School (FL); Felix M. Jacomino, Director of Technology, St. Stephen's Episcopal Day School (FL); The Rev. Jorge Sayago-Gonzalez, Chaplain, St. Stephen's Episcopal Day School (FL)

The World Religions Class: Education in Empathy

A workshop on using the World Religions classroom to teach the skills of empathy and cultural perspective-taking. Teaching World Religions is more than teaching history, more than teaching scripture, more than teaching creed: it is teaching world view. How do we encourage our students to take off their own lenses and learn to see the world through the lenses of the religious “other”? How can we assess their progress and give them feedback on this critical 21st century skill? Examples will be shared from the Religion Department at St. Mark's School and will also be solicited from workshop participants; active sharing of resources and techniques among all attendees will play a large part in the workshop.

GRADES: Middle School, Upper School

PRESENTER(S): Stephen Hebert, Assistant Chaplain and Chair of the Religion Department, St. Mark's School (MA); The Rev. Barbara Talcott, Head Chaplain and Religion Teacher, St. Mark's School (MA)

Principles of Good Practice for School Ministry in Episcopal Schools

Published in March 2016, this newest addition to the NAES Principles of Good Practice series offers recommendations for the practice of school ministry. These include the role of the chaplain, the head of school-chaplain and other relationships, reporting structures, search processes, and compensation. Join us for a lively review and discussion of this publication.

EPISCOPAL IDENTITY & SCHOOL CULTURE

Fostering a Culture of Resilience

In the school setting, administrators, teachers, and students are faced with challenges daily that require adjustment to change, and recovery from adversity. Discovering, learning, and teaching the skills needed to increase resilience as a community is not only important, it is imperative. Our faith wonderfully provides a model for building resilience. How we practically apply these principles distinguishes an Episcopal school. Join us as we discuss how to foster a culture of resilient faculty, staff, and students.

GRADES: Elementary

In God's Playful Spirit: Embracing Episcopal Identity in a Preschool Setting

This workshop will help Early Childhood educators, both heads and teachers, in understanding what it means to be an Episcopal preschool and how to incorporate that identity in the day to day life of the school. The workshop will show examples of how St. Mark's Preschool has embraced its identity as an Episcopal preschool, through chapel, outreach, and classroom activities.

GRADES: Early Childhood

PRESENTER(S): Sally Farrell, Director, St. Mark's Preschool (CT)

EQUITY & JUSTICE • SERVICE & SERVICE-LEARNING

Disruptive Service: Moving from Needs to Assets

Many service projects are based on the perceived needs of a community, sustaining narratives and cycles of dependency that are usually defined by others. What if service was the product of partnerships that leverage the shared gifts of our community partners? In this workshop, learn how Asset-Based Community Development (ABCD) builds relationships, strengthens communities, and can inform service projects that value the gifts of a community over its needs. Additionally, you will learn to apply the ABCD methodology to your school, shifting viewpoints from scarcity to enough and inspiring sustainable growth in your educational community.

LEADERSHIP & GOVERNANCE

How to Find and Train Excellent Volunteer and Professional Leaders

Church Schools in the Diocese of Virginia has conducted four head searches in the past five years and with six schools, six separately incorporated foundations, and an overall board of trustees, we have at least a couple of new chair persons or board presidents each year. The workshop will have three parts: A section on head searches, a section on board chairs, and a section on orienting and training both. In the first part we'll present what works now, what no longer works as well, what has changed in the past five years and what lessons have been learned about identification and recruitment. We'll also discuss what constitutes a good transition. In the second part we'll talk about identifying, cultivating, orienting, and supporting volunteer leaders as well as about succession planning. In the third part we'll review how best to help new leaders prepare. This section will emphasize finance, physical plant, status of strategic plans, governance and will consider several questions prospective chairs and heads often ask.

GRADES: Early Childhood, Elementary, Middle School, Upper School

PRESENTER(S): J. Chip Broadway, Jr., Vice President and Treasurer, Church Schools in the Diocese of Virginia (VA); David H. Charlton, Ed.D., President, Church Schools in the Diocese of Virginia (VA); The Rev. Edward O. Miller, Jr., Board Chair, Church Schools in the Diocese of Virginia (VA)

SCHOOL MANAGEMENT

A Collaborative Effort Behind the Scenes: Guiding Students and Families with Compassion and Grace

Often administrators and faculty feel overwhelmed by all the problems that come up each day and get bogged down making decisions and dealing with student academic, emotional, and personal problems. St. Martin's Episcopal School has organized a "Care Team", consisting of division principals, chaplain, school nurse, dean of students and counselors. In a collaborative effort, the Care Team meets to discuss and address that week's myriad of student learning and/or behavioral issues, as well as monitor areas of students' academic growth and achievement, social, emotional development, and spiritual development. This particular supportive structure focuses on guiding with compassion and grace and it assists in providing invaluable opportunities to minister to the students and families we serve, which speaks to the heart of an Episcopal schools' mission.

GRADES: Early Childhood, Elementary, Middle School

PRESENTER(S): Cindy Alexander, M.S.Ed., Early Childhood Principal, St. Martin's Episcopal School (GA); Mary McPherson, Ph.D., Elementary Principal, St. Martin's Episcopal School (GA); The Rev. Stefanie E. Taylor, Chaplain, St. Martin's Episcopal School (GA)

Is Your School Prepared For a Disaster? Do You Have a Business Continuity Plan?

Quickly identifying critical business functions and any impact on them is essential to your organization's survival during a disaster and in resuming operations as quickly as possible. Our presenters will assist you in developing a variety of materials for reference prior to, during and after a crisis situation. The topics include information on everything from natural and man-made disasters to emergency safety planning and business continuity efforts: risk assessment, emergency policies & procedures, incident and crisis management plans, education & awareness, and testing the plan.

GRADES: Early Childhood, Elementary, Middle School, Upper School

Who's Afraid of the BCP? Adapting the Book of Common Prayer into a Child-Centered Chapel Program

Ritual, creativity, and participation are central to both the spiritual development of children and the Book of Common Prayer. Deepen the experience of your Lower School chapel program by adapting the BCP, the Liturgical Year, and the unique traditions of your Episcopal school to meet the spiritual needs of a multi-faith community. In addition to learning how to expand the chapel experience with social media, participants will be introduced to cross-curricular strategies that incorporate art, music, writing, speech, drama, and service learning into the chapel program.

You Are In The Midst of Us: Compline as a Liturgical Tool for Practicing Episcopal Inclusivity

As schools become increasingly diverse, how does one craft chapel worship to be inclusive while highlighting a school's Episcopal identity? Using the Groton School chapel program as an example, this workshop will explore different ways to practice Episcopal inclusivity. Specifically highlighted will be the use of Compline as a tool to engage seekers. During the workshop, we will define Episcopal inclusivity and describe how Groton uses both spoken and sung Compline services to embody it. We will then discuss why Compline works well as a liturgical tool to engage seekers of all faiths and how the service can be integrated into the wider life of the school.

EPISCOPAL IDENTITY & SCHOOL CULTURE

Realizing, Celebrating, and Marketing Episcopal Identity

Learn how one school uses the Episcopal Schools Celebration as a centerpiece for realizing our Episcopal identity. Engagement of students, faculty, parents, alumni, and our parish, make this possible through service and outreach, joint worship, reflection, and a lot of fun. At the heart of our planning are four core values: student-centered, stewardship, 21st century skills, and Episcopal identity. Based on our mission, these values guide governance, curriculum, worship, stewardship, and community spirit. Our Portrait of a Graduate and Characteristics of Professional Excellence inform these goals and shape our brand identity and marketing.

Using Love, Respect, and Kindness to Build a School Culture

School culture is one of the most difficult aspects of a school community to build, but it plays such an important role in day to day experience for our students. Life outside the classroom is a significant opportunity for Episcopal schools to instill values and characteristics which are consistent with Episcopal identity. With a concerted effort at focusing on love, respect and kindness, strategies will be shared to consider the impact our school systems can have on creating a school culture which is true to Episcopal identity.

EQUITY & JUSTICE • SERVICE & SERVICE-LEARNING

Beginning with the End: Faith in Action at the Bedside of the Dying

Learn how to do something new in the classroom that is very old. Teach students how to provide holistic care for those who are dying that is predicated on the ethical principle that each life matters, each life is precious and each life is unique. In this workshop, you will explore the power of death as our greatest teacher and how to leverage death education to make meaning of our living with dying, through interaction with a curriculum that provides the students with a solid formation as they enter the field to give physical care, comfort care, social/emotional care, spiritual care, and grief/bereavement support to the dying and their loved ones at the bedside. This is faith and prayer in action that offers a deep relationship with equity, justice, and dignity across cultures. Sacred ground where story and experience merge with the face of God.

Developing Citizens, Expanding Inclusivity, and Building Communities: Episcopal Schools as Agents of Change

As technological innovations thicken webs of connectedness and bring people closer together, we move from a multicultural world to an increasingly global community. We all are “glocal” citizens and potential agents of change in our world. In Episcopal terms, our youngest generation is poised to realize the Kingdom of God. By examining our emergent contexts, exploring our Episcopal identity and programs, and recognizing the challenges/opportunities we have on multiple levels—local through global—one will see that Episcopal schools with a global focus can be catalytic levers to move communities beyond diversity and inclusiveness to equity and justice.

LEADERSHIP & GOVERNANCE

What Your Head of School Wishes You Understood

Are you sometimes surprised by how schools work or by the head of school's response to certain situations? Do you sometimes feel like the head of school lives in an alternate universe? Despite their similarities and mutual relationships, there are many ways in which serving schools and churches differ, ranging from financial management, to relations with members of the community served, to an understanding of time. Two experienced heads of school with deep commitment to The Episcopal Church and Episcopal schools will discuss aspects of school life which are second nature to heads, but which may be completely foreign to a rector who hasn't had a long ministry in schools.

A New Paradigm: Bridging the Cultural Divide Between Administrators and Faculty

School leaders and teachers operate almost wholly in two distinct spheres, sometimes seeming to speak different languages. Recurring issues that vex schools—merit pay, strategic planning, technology use, scheduling, etc.—exist in the space between these two spheres. The proposed paradigm recognizes that teachers work in what anthropologists call the “gift economy,” where success is defined by what is given, while administrators function in a “transactional economy,” characterized by growth trajectories and market dynamics. Join this workshop to gain insight that helps teachers and administrators to bridge the gap, align their work, and support each other's endeavors.

TEACHING & CURRICULUM

Aligning Academics and Episcopal Identity Through Authentic Inquiry

At The White Mountain School our academic curriculum focuses on Authentic Inquiry—learning driven more by exploration of questions students truly hold, and less by predetermined lists of required content. We see this as a central aspect of our Episcopal identity, as Authentic Inquiry fulfills the Episcopal charge to keep alive students' wonder in God's creation. In this discussion-based workshop we will share the steps we've taken to build this culture of curiosity and inquiry, the role of the new Center for Authentic Inquiry, and how we have worked with students, teachers, parents, and colleges to build support.

Guiding and Nurturing the Wellbeing of Our Teens: Heart, Soul, Strength, and Mind

Everyone is concerned about the decisions teens make. Episcopal schools work to help our teens make good decisions, to help them use their faith as their compass as they navigate this increasingly complex world. An innovative new tool has been developed to help us do that more effectively. The presenters will share the new things they are doing to weave together ethics, healthy decision-making, and religion.

Chapel does not have to be something to be endured by students and staff. It can involve the whole child in meaningful ways, and be a time that attendees look forward to with anticipation. Child-centered worship can utilize movement and traditional Episcopal aspects to build community and help participants grow spiritually. Participants will learn how to encourage participation at all grade levels, and how messages from teachers, skits by students, and the types of songs chosen can move worshippers to grow spiritually.

Transforming Chapel/Transforming Students

Staying faithful to liturgical tradition, it is possible to do something new. Join us as we share our challenges and our successes in transforming our chapel. Our challenges have led us to find new and creative ways to engage students as active participants and leaders of chapel. Successes include adopting overall themes, such as "respecting the dignity of every human being." Focusing on this theme, we address tough topics such as racism, overcoming biases, learning to respect ourselves, and the use of social media. We will engage participants in dialogue about what is working in each of our schools.

Collaboration for Common Goals: A Model of Leadership Development in Student Life

This workshop seeks to share a model for interdisciplinary collaboration—one that treats leadership and ethics as curricular elements. Using the model of the National Cathedral School's Center for Ethical Leadership and Service, the presentation will highlight the decisions made by the institution that have allowed for rich partnerships to develop among the three student life administrators in the Upper School: Dean of Students, Senior Chaplain, and Director of Diversity. The workshop will offer an overview of this innovative program; will highlight specific ways that the relatively new Center has already made an impact at NCS; and will engage participants in a hands-on exploration of how this model could be adapted in various school settings. Participants will leave with a greater understanding of how collaborative partnerships build and support curricula that merge tenets of identity, ethically driven leadership, and social justice.

Mindfulness, Meditation, and Media

"God is a God not of chaos but of peace." 1 Corinthians 14:33
In today's schools, just as in today's world, peace is a precious commodity often difficult to find. Mindfulness, an Ancient Eastern custom rooted in the Buddhist tradition, has been a pathway toward finding peace. At San Jose Episcopal, we have adapted the Eastern practice into a Christian discipline which we are using across the curriculum. Using it in chapel and Christian education came naturally, but we have surprisingly found how helpful it is in places like drama and our Media Center. It is an amazing thing to watch stress melt away and the behavior of our students dramatically improve after the ringing of the Mindfulness Bell.

Becoming the Beloved Community: Youth Faith Formation for Racial Justice and Reconciliation

Many anti-racism resources utilized in school and church settings rely upon secular pedagogies that focus on "information" rather than formation or transformation. We recognize the need for a both/and approach to engage young people in racial reconciliation. This workshop will share insights into the ways that a faith formation approach can foster deep, provocative, and loving conversations about racial justice and reconciliation. What Do Spirituality and Self-Regulation Have In Common? Practical Applications of Current Neuroscience Research

Much current research and anecdotal information highlights the importance of self-regulation as crucial to academic and life success. Many also note increased anxiety in students. Schools are challenged to find concrete methods that teach and foster self-regulation in attention, impulse, and emotion beginning at the very youngest age. Episcopal schools further are called to nurture the spiritual lives of their community. After briefly highlighting some current research, the workshop will offer examples and whole group experiences, demonstrating what Trinity Episcopal School in New Orleans is doing with our youngest children. We will discuss how these simple, intentional experiences link self-regulation and the seeds of spirituality.

When You Have a Crisis, Hope Is Not a Strategy

With the increase in crises (of all types) in our schools, the need to be as prepared as possible in advance is critical. There are steps you can take so you'll be ahead of the game should a crisis come your way. In this age of transparency with social media, there is no place to hide. A school needs to communicate effectively and in a timely manner to its constituencies. In this session we will review best practices for being prepared and the first most important steps to take in the first 60 minutes when crisis strikes. LEADERSHIP & GOVERNANCE

Turning Purpose into Performance

For most schools, the mission of the school has little or no relevance for day to day operations. This is due to the school's mission being too "comprehensive" and therefore not really providing the management team with any actionable knowledge. Based on ISM's 40 years of experience, the mission by itself is just not enough. Schools need three core "organizational/community meaning documents" that help solidify the "why," ensure a common understanding of the mission and its implications on practice, and provide metrics that have meaning for the school community. ISM calls these documents Purpose & Outcome Statements. Come join Bill Simmer, ISM's Director of Association Relations, as we explore your "why" in a way that helps you identify the "what" of moving forward with purpose as a school.

Star Wars, Snapchat, and Me

In this technologically driven world, students are asked to be in constant contact with their peers, some they know and others they don't. While everyone else is examining their lives, are they taking the time to, or asked, to examine their own? What about their relationship with God and how that drives their decisions? How are we, as chapel leaders, communicating the importance of introspection and application of spiritual truths to students? In this workshop, we will discover methods of using ordinary items to convey extraordinary truths and how to apply them. We will use the world around us, as well as the mediums of communication with which students are comfortable, as our classroom so that the truths of God are available for students everyday and the application of those truths is inevitable.

CHAPLAINCY

Life in Seasons: Transitions as the Chaplain's Work

Navigating the celebrations, transitions, and sorrows of a school community, the chaplain's work is seminal to the thriving of a healthy school. Meeting the community by living and modeling empathy and compassion while respecting the diversity in the 21st century creates an important relational conversation in Episcopal schools. During this moment in society with fear and anxiety grasping at our culture, the chaplain's vocation is to be a calm, non-anxious presence, sometimes offering a prophetic voice. Dealing with grief of various forms, this workshop will provide specific skills and tools to face the opportunities and challenges of Episcopal schools.

Didn't Henry VIII Start This Church So He Could Get a Divorce?

A one hour bird's eye view of Anglican/Episcopal history using slides and humor. Purpose: a quick primer for those working for Episcopal schools and wanting to know more about our history.

GRADES: Early Childhood, Elementary, Middle School, Upper School

PRESENTER(S): The Rev. Wilifred S. N. Allen-Faiella, Rector, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church (FL)

Parents and Early Childhood Education Programs: A Changing Dynamic

Many of today's parents approach preschool with high expectations for their child's learning, combined with anxiety about the future. Current or prospective parents increasingly expect preschools to be responsive to their needs, be it a longer school day or specific activities or curricula. Join your early childhood education colleagues to talk together about these changing dynamics and how schools are responding.

EQUITY & JUSTICE • SERVICE & SERVICE-LEARNING

D.I.G.N.I.T.Y.: Creating a Preferred Future for Communities to Thrive!

Are we who we say we are? How do we respect the dignity of every human being within our communities? How do we create an environment in our schools that lives out and fulfills our mission and Episcopal identity more accurately? What strategies can we identify and implement to foster a more diverse and inclusive environment? This workshop will grapple with these questions and more using the tenets of the D.I.G.N.I.T.Y. model and approach.

LEADERSHIP & GOVERNANCE

The Changing Expectations of Episcopal School Heads

With changing demographics and greater economic pressures, the role of an Episcopal school head has never been more challenging. Drawing on their work with Episcopal Schools throughout the country, consultants Bob Fricker and Peter Philip of Carney Sandoe & Associates will share their perspectives on the changing expectations that heads of Episcopal schools face today.

TEACHING & CURRICULUM

The Constantly Evolving Classroom: How to Stay Relevant in a Rapidly Changing World

See how one middle school teacher has used specific strategies, apps, and websites in an ever-evolving quest to make his courses, English and Latin, more relevant and engaging for his students. The presentation will focus on two major areas: a) the seamless integration of multiple tech tools such as Instagram, Twitter, Study Stacks, Blogger, and many more, and b) a shift in pedagogical approach to a more student-centered model through the use of flipped lessons, collaboration, and inquiry-based projects. This presentation will serve as a snapshot of what the future of education holds.

Do Something: Research Projects that Make a Difference

Research projects jump off the page when students are passionate to “do something!” The rigorous work done as a part of this focused endeavor uses storytelling as the springboard for student passion and empathy, as well as to spark students’ desire to select a global issue and make a difference in the world. Beginning by identifying a global problem, students create purposeful action plans that increase awareness and make a difference in their and others’ ethical footprints. The process integrates SS/ELA, technology, social media, student inquiry, and publication, and culminates in our, Global Citizenship Day (<https://goo.gl/d58Uxs>).

Let Us “Digitally” Inspire You!

How can you use innovation to enhance your curriculum by providing resources and ideas that will bring your teaching to life? Students will showcase their learning process through collaborative interdisciplinary projects, and through the support of mobile devices in order to create new student products. Your students will be authentically engaged as a result of technology that will enhance student-centered learning, project-based learning, STEAM, and 21st century thinking in the classroom. The integration of technology in the curriculum will allow students to build and reflect on the learning process through their digital portfolios.

Never-Ending New: “SEECKing” the SMART Solution

St. Paul’s has successfully combined two unique programs: the SEECK Program (Sustainable Environmental, Economic, and Cultural Knowledge) and the SMART Program. Both programs are woven into all areas of the curriculum with the goal of improving and expanding on student knowledge in the areas of sustainability and service learning. Students work enthusiastically for the good of their community, develop a purposeful sense of responsibility and global citizenship, and apply their knowledge, skills, and creativity. Each year brings new challenges, opportunities, and ideas for students, along with teacher mentors, to create, expand, design, and collaborate to find solutions for identified needs.

Sponsorship Opportunities & Tabletop Exhibits

Sponsorship Opportunities

From networking receptions and meals, to the technology connecting our attendees, a Biennial Conference 2016 sponsorship puts your organization's brand, promise, services, and people in front of Episcopal school leaders and decision makers.

A variety of sponsorship packages are available, and each includes a tabletop exhibit position of your choosing and full registration for at least one representative.

Tabletop Exhibits

$1,550 • Regular Rate

$1,450 • Loyalty Rate

Get discovered in our exhibit space! Showcase your company at one of our limited tabletop exhibits, strategically placed to maximize your interaction with our attendees.

Connect with attendees during the conference, with Thursday's morning coffee, afternoon refresher, and opening reception and Friday's morning coffee especially designated as "exhibitor meet and greets."

The discounted Loyalty Rate is available to organizations that are Corporate Subscribers in both 2015 and 2016, or to organizations that exhibited at the past three Biennial Conferences.

Tabletop Exhibit Hours

Thursday, November 10, 8:00 AM-7:30 PM (with breaks for all-conference events outside the exhibit area)

Friday, November 11, 8:00 AM-12:00 PM

Room Rate: $199

The rate is for single or double occupancy per night and subject to applicable state and local fees and taxes.

How to Make a Reservation

Telephone: (888) 771-4429. The room block is listed as “NAES Biennial Conference 2016.” You must ask for this block to secure the conference rate.

Online: <https://resweb.passkey.com/go/NAES16>

Reservation Deadline Is Monday, October 10, 2016

Reservations requested after this date will be available on a space-and rate-available basis.

Why You Should Stay at the New Orleans Marriott

By staying at the New Orleans Marriott, you'll help hold down the cost of future Biennials! NAES must guarantee that a certain percentage of the contracted sleeping rooms will be used and that it will pay in full for any unused rooms below this threshold. This payment negatively affects Biennial's bottom line. It also makes it necessary to budget for such payments in the future, thus increasing registration costs. Thank you for staying at the New Orleans Marriott. We look forward to seeing you there!

TRAVEL INFORMATION
